

Your super and pension in perspective

In a year that was generally dominated by bad news for investors, the last three months of the financial year finally gave UniSuper's members some positive signs. And, although the road is likely to remain bumpy into the foreseeable future, some in the investment community are suggesting that the worst may now be behind us.

It's important to remember that super and pensions tend to be long-term investments, designed to build your retirement savings over many years, and last you through many years of retirement. As such, periods of negative returns are a normal part of the overall investment cycle and tend to flatten out over the long term.

To find out more about recent events on global markets and how they may have affected your super or pension investments, select an investment bulletin from the list below:

To find out more about recent events on global markets and how they may have affected your super or pension investments, you can view an investment bulleting on our website (www.unisuper.com.au):

- Your super in perspective - Investment update for accumulation super members, 30 June 2009
- Your super in perspective - Investment update for Defined Benefit Division (DBD) members, 30 June 2009
- Your Pension in perspective - Investment update for Flexi and Term Allocated Pension members, 30 June 2009
- Indexed Pension members can view information about their account at www.unisuper.com.au