Message from the CEO

As you may have seen on our website, I was honoured to collect awards for ‘Super Fund of the Year’ and ‘Best Fund: Investments’ on UniSuper’s behalf at ratings agency Chant West’s annual super awards ceremony in May.

CATERING TO MEMBER NEEDS AND PROVIDING ON-CAMPUS SUPPORT
When presenting the awards—which take into account our performance in the areas of investments, member services, fees, insurance and administration—Chant West director Warren Chant made particular mention of our retirement calculators and video member statements, as well as the benefit projections we piloted earlier this year and are rolling out to more members with the 30 June benefit statements. The great feedback we’ve received in response to these initiatives shows we’re on the right track in our efforts.

These initiatives demonstrate our commitment to listening to and responding to our members’ needs. Our network of on-campus consultants, who are now available Australia-wide, provides members with an additional way to give us feedback, ensuring we deliver even more for members. Your on-campus consultant can help you with general super queries and information on our products and services.

You can find your nearest on-campus consultant on your university specific page at unisuper.com.au/employers/universities. If you don’t have an on-campus consultant at your university or are no longer working in the sector, you can obtain general advice about your account or a UniSuper product or service by calling our Financial Advice Centre on 1300 331 685.

CONTINUED STRONG INVESTMENT PERFORMANCE
By delivering consistently strong investment performance we can help our members to pursue their financial goals in retirement. The ‘Best Fund: Investments’ award 2015 recognises our achievements and expertise in this area. Chant West highlighted in particular the strength of our internal investment team and its management of a significant portion of the fund’s assets, the excellence of the Board’s Investment Committee and the consistency of our returns. The investment market update that comes with your statement pack has more about our recent investment performance.
ON THE HORIZON
While we’re thrilled to be named 2015 ‘Super Fund of the Year’ and ‘Best Fund: Investments’, we’re not resting on our laurels. Here are some of the things we’ll be doing over coming months to help ensure you have the very best in terms of products and services, fees and returns.

Fee changes: Our fees are consistently among the most competitive in the industry, but we’re always keeping an eye on our pricing to make sure we continue to offer great value to our members. You can read more about fee changes on page 20.

Enhanced member spaces: We’re upgrading our member spaces in UniSuper offices around the country. Whether you’re meeting with an adviser, dropping by to ask a question or simply returning a form, these refurbished spaces will provide a more private and comfortable setting in which to chat with our UniSuper consultants and advisers.

Product enhancements: Many members are currently able to make a binding death benefit nomination to specify to whom their benefit would be paid in the event of their death. As those binding nominations expire after three years, from 1 October 2015 we’ll be offering non-lapsing binding nominations. Find out more on page 22.

Fee changes coming soon

It’s not often you hear about fees going down, but we’re pleased to advise that many UniSuper members will pay less for our products and services from 1 October 2015, when we’ll be reducing our administration fees for Accumulation 1 and 2, Spouse Account and Flexi Pension members, and reducing the switching fee for all members.

You’ve told us that being confident your super fund’s fees are competitive is one of your top concerns. Offering great value is also one of the key ways we measure our success. This is why we commit to reviewing our fees regularly—it helps us ensure that we continue to be competitive.

If you’d like to learn more about the fees that apply to your account, you can take a look at the relevant product disclosure statement or Fees and costs video at unisuper.com.au.

WANT TO KNOW MORE?
See page 20 for details of the fee changes coming in on 1 October 2015. While you’re there, be sure to look at other changes that took effect on 1 July 2015.

More information will also be available at unisuper.com.au when the 1 October changes take effect.

In the meantime, please call us on 1800 331 685 if you have any questions.
Since taking up motorsport more than a decade ago, Lyn has embraced the world of motor racing. Affectionately dubbed ‘Penelope Pitstop’ (a character from the 1960s animated series Wacky Races) by her peers, Lyn Harris is thriving in motorsport, an arena traditionally dominated by males. She and ‘her girl’—a Subaru 1998 WRX which she mainly works and maintains herself—have competed at some of the major Australian circuits: Bathurst in NSW; Phillip Island, Sandown, Winton and Calder in Victoria; and Symmons Plains in Tasmania. On many of these occasions she’s come first in her class or been runner up.

She’s also a committee member of the WRX Club Victoria and is the club’s delegate for the Victorian State Council of the Confederation of Australian Motorsport (CAMS). With her busy schedule and responsibilities, Lyn demonstrates that, “It’s never too late to do something you have always wanted to do and something you really have a passion for”.

Here’s a peek into Lyn’s day at the Phillip Island Circuit—just months before she headed off to Europe to fulfil her dream of driving a race-prepared car at the Nürburgring in Germany.

In her winning ‘Your retirement dreams’ competition entry, UniSuper member and Executive Assistant Lyn Harris wrote: “As a single female, I am still racing my car after 13 years ... I have now competed in the Bathurst Festival Regularity at Easter twice, finishing 6/55 in 2014 ... My ultimate goal is to drive the Holy Grail, the Nürburgring in Germany”. Intrigued, we went along to Phillip Island earlier this year to watch her in action.
The day starts just after sunrise, as Lyn joins the procession of cars arriving at the circuit.

Lyn replaces her road tyres with ‘R-rated’ racing tyres that are stickier and give more grip.

Signing in for driver briefing.

The ‘Clerk of Course’ goes over the day’s regulations at the driver briefing.

Lyn and her Subaru WRX hit the track for her first session of the day.

Car still in one piece and satisfying lap times: the end of a long but good day.
An inside look at diversification

One of the basic pieces of advice given to investors is to ensure their portfolio is well diversified to help protect against volatile markets. But what does that look like—and is it possible to go too far? We recently posed this question to our Chief Investment Officer John Pearce and Private Client Adviser Natalie Eden.

SO WHY WOULD WE TELL OUR MEMBERS TO DIVERSIFY?

John Pearce (JP): As the old saying goes, “you shouldn’t put all your eggs in one basket”. The reason it’s survived all this time is because it’s good old-fashioned common sense.

In the early 1950s, Harry Markowitz proved mathematically that a portfolio of a number of loosely correlated securities will exhibit less volatility or less risk than a single security. This is quite technical, so I’d rather stick to the simple wisdom of not putting your eggs into the one basket, plain and simple.

Natalie Eden (NE): I agree with John, diversification can be best described as not putting your eggs in one basket, with the aim being to manage risk and allow for more consistent performance under various economic conditions.

JP: That’s another way of looking at it. We like to think of diversification as not necessarily managing risk per se. One thing we’ve got to be very clear about is that diversification doesn’t eliminate risk. I think there’s a misconception that it does—however, a risky asset stays a risky asset regardless of how you combine it with other risky assets in a portfolio.
SO, WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY THAT?

JP: I think there’s a misconception that the best way to reduce risk is to diversify. Just consider the GFC as an example. It proved that a risky asset will stay a risky asset, no matter how you combine it with other risky assets in a portfolio.

It turns out in a crisis situation, all types of assets are far more correlated than the theory would have it—so you’ve got to be careful when you think about diversification as a risk mitigator.

NE: I agree. Some members feel that by having various super funds it means they’re diversifying but what you’ll tend to find is that many of them are investing in the same companies anyway. These members are not only duplicating on fees and costs but also potentially overcomplicating things and not even reducing the risk in their portfolio or necessarily achieving better returns.

JOHN, WHAT ARE SOME FEATURES OF UNISUPER’S APPROACH TO DIVERSIFICATION?

JP: We firstly use diversification as a way to access higher returns for the same level of risk. The best way I can describe it is by looking at our concentrated exposure to global healthcare and technology. These are fast growing sectors that are very profitable and we don’t have any of that in Australia. We’re not doing it to reduce risk per se, because they are still risky assets, but rather to access greater potential returns.

We’re also careful not to over-diversify. Our Balanced option has 70% in growth assets and 30% in defensive assets so at a high level, it’s diversified enough. When you look at the growth assets and split them up, you’ve got an allocation in global assets, Australian assets and property, so at that asset class level, you’re also diversified.

IS IT POSSIBLE FOR MEMBERS TO OVER-DIVERSIFY?

JP: The short answer is yes, and we’ve actually got a few members who spread their investments across many options and you’ve really got to question why—the more you diversify, the more likely you are to get average returns.

UniSuper’s got a good range of Pre-Mixed options so you don’t have to go across lots of options to get the level of diversification you want. Even our Sector options can be relatively diversified within the relevant sector, but are less diversified than our Pre-Mixed options.

Take our Australian Shares option for example. It’s invested in well over 100 companies so there’s considerable diversification there already.

DOES DIVERSIFICATION MAKE SENSE FOR ALL AGES?

NE: I think diversification is equally important no matter what age. The way you would apply it perhaps depends on what life stage you’re in, so the way I think about it is picturing the classic balance scales.

You’ve got defensive assets on one tray and growth assets on the other. Typically, defensive assets provide more stable returns with lower levels of risk, and growth assets provide greater returns over the longer term but with greater risk levels and possibly more volatility.
These scales might tip one way or the other depending on where you are in life, as well as your general appetite for risk and the returns you seek. I think usually if you’re younger, or have more time until you’ll need to access your super, you might have more money on the growth side of the scales.

But as people head closer to retirement, the scales typically may tip more towards the defensive side where you become more reliant and dependant on the overall performance of the funds to achieve the desired level of income in retirement.

JP: I agree. There are merits to diversification no matter what your age.

IN SUMMARY, WHAT ARE THE MAIN PRIORITIES TO REMEMBER ABOUT DIVERSIFICATION?

NE: I’d suggest members need to consider how diversification fits into their overall strategy. Think about how long you have to invest.

Our younger members would have a longer timeframe which would then help guide their investment decisions. Our members who are very close to or already in retirement might take a different approach.

I’d say consider your assets outside of super as well. If you have cash (not set aside for expenditure), shares or property outside of super, then you need to consider that as well because you might be skewed to a particular asset class without realising.

JP: If I could say one thing to members, it’d be to not overcomplicate things. As superannuation professionals, a lot of our work is based around diversification theory. But technical models aren’t a substitute for logic and common sense.

If someone likes residential real estate as an investment, that’s fine. But buying two houses in the same street may not be a sensible way to diversify.

So it comes back to the age old wisdom we started with – don’t put all your eggs in one basket.

KEY POINTS

• While diversification has its obvious benefits, it’s not the answer to eliminating risk from an investment portfolio.
• For UniSuper, diversification is a means to an end with the ultimate aim being to increase returns for members for any given level of risk.
• Consider your assets outside of super when looking at how you diversify your investments.

See our website for more detail about the risk profile, returns and key assets of all our investment options.

Preparing for retirement
— an adviser’s ‘Top 5’

UniSuper Advice financial adviser Derek Gascoigne gives us his top five tips for preparing for retirement.

1. THINK ABOUT WHAT YOU WILL DO BEYOND YOUR PAID WORKING LIFE
Sometimes people give so much thought to the financial side of planning for retirement that they neglect to think about what they’ll do once they eventually get there! Having a sense of what you’re planning to do (e.g. travel, volunteer work, hobbies) will provide you with something to look forward to, as well as help you determine your income requirements in retirement.

2. MAKE BEST USE OF THE TIME THAT IS LEFT
By taking stock of your position while you’re still working and earning an income, you can understand what changes and strategies you might be able to adopt to help improve your financial position at retirement. Obtain some broader financial education, attend seminars and webinars and/or seek advice if necessary. Consolidating multiple super accounts, understanding the value of a super savings strategy compared to debt reduction, deploying a Transition to Retirement strategy; these are all strategies that can add extra value for retirement—which could mean more to enjoy later!
3. UNDERSTAND YOUR RISK APPETITE AND SET AN INVESTMENT STRATEGY
People often set their investment strategy and then forget about it. Generally, people move away from seeking growth as they approach retirement and want to preserve their capital. You should check your appetite for investment risk, confirm your preferences for social, ethical and environmental investments, and then align your portfolio—either just in super or more broadly—with your risk profile by choosing the appropriate investment option/s for your needs and objectives. This helps to prevent situations where your wealth might incur more volatility than you’re prepared to accept. It also ensures you’ve adopted the appropriate level of investment risk to meet your investment performance expectations.

“Even small improvements to your wealth can make substantial differences over the long term.”

4. KNOW YOUR OUTFLOWS
Many people don’t work to a budget, but a critical part of retirement planning is ensuring you can meet your expenditure needs. Separate your expenses into non-discretionary (e.g. rates, utilities, insurances, food) and discretionary (e.g. gifts, entertainment, holidays) items. You could find that your capital can already meet these needs (meaning you could bring your retirement forward), or that you can increase your discretionary expenditure in retirement without having to worry about shortfalls. You may also discover that there isn’t enough to meet your expenditure needs. As a result, you may need to reassess your income requirements if you plan to retire sooner, or work longer to build up your wealth, to generate the income you want in retirement.
5. IT’S NEVER TOO LATE TO SEEK ADVICE

Firstly, you don’t know what you don’t know—there’s generally plenty that a suitably qualified and experienced adviser might do if they were in your position. Secondly, it’d be disheartening to make it to retirement and realise you mightn’t have missed out on opportunities that could have improved your position if you’d just sought advice earlier. Even small improvements to your wealth can make substantial differences over the long term. An effective adviser would aim to build your wealth for retirement optimally and would make recommendations to eliminate or minimise inefficiencies, so that you can reach retirement knowing you’ve given yourself a better place to start from.

Making the transition

UniSuper member Professor Adrian Evans reduced his working hours and began transitioning to retirement earlier this year. He talks to us about discovering his inner ‘semi-tradie’ and the challenges he’s faced at this time of transition.

TELL US ABOUT YOURSELF.
I’m a Legal Clinician at Monash University’s Faculty of Law where I’m also a teacher in Legal Ethics. This means I’m training later-year students to become lawyers by putting them in contact with real clients.

WHEN DID YOU FIRST START THINKING ABOUT MAKING THE TRANSITION TO RETIREMENT?
I thought about this initially a couple of years ago. There were factors that were leading me in that direction. I had a senior role in the faculty connected with managing staff which was in addition to my normal role. It was a very demanding role and I found that I was getting increasingly tired. That role finished and I had the space to think about what life could be like without that job. Also, domestically we needed to look after my wife’s father a lot more intensively than we had been. We used to live some distance from him and we intended to move to Geelong to care for him.

WHY DID YOU DECIDE TO TRANSITION TO RETIREMENT RATHER THAN RETIRE OUTRIGHT?
I had thought about completely retiring but I really enjoy the core job I do of training up potential lawyers. I couldn’t quite hack the idea of leaving immediately all in one hit. So I’ve gone down to effectively half-time hours and I’ve retained my core teaching interest.

HOW DID YOU GO ABOUT MAKING THE TRANSITION? DID YOU GET ANY ADVICE?
I certainly did. I spoke to Dale Eriksen, who’s a UniSuper qualified financial adviser, and he was very helpful, intuitive and understanding. He was able to crystallise the thoughts I had and explain the financial consequences either way.

DID YOU FACE ANY CHALLENGES WHEN YOU MADE THE TRANSITION?
The biggest challenge I’ve had is actually confining my work to part-time hours. You’re not going to get the benefit of part-time hours and therefore a better work/life balance unless you’re prepared to draw strict boundaries. I haven’t resolved that yet. People do say that in theory there will be those issues, but experiencing them is something else again. The word ‘transition’ sums it all up. It doesn’t happen in a second.
WHAT'S A TYPICAL DAY FOR YOU LIKE NOW?
A typical day at work is jam-packed! I’m on the road by 5.30am to commute to Monash, Clayton.

The days I’m not working are great. I get up and go for a long bike ride or long walk with my partner.

The sort of stuff that I’m enjoying that I never had the chance to do before is retro-fitting double glazing in our home for green energy purposes. I enjoy being productive in a ‘semi-tradie’ sense.

I’m intrigued by what is called a ‘U-value’ which is the level at which heat departs or enters a window and reducing this wherever possible. As you get closer to retirement, how you’re going to fund increasing electricity and gas prices is something that exercises your mind more than it would have 20 years ago. All of that I’m finding very creative and fun to work on.

DO YOU HAVE ANY ADVICE FOR OTHER UNISUPER MEMBERS WHO MAY BE APPROACHING RETIREMENT?
Get advice. But apart from that, have a realistic idea of what you’re going to do that’s different from your usual daily schedule and try to visualise how that can actually work. Focus on your core enjoyment at work and try and get rid of all the other stuff. Use the fact that you’re in a transition period to be honest about what you can and can’t do.

A defined passion

As Head of Research and Quant Methods at UniSuper, actuary and investment professional David Schneider has been helping to create value for our Defined Benefit Division (DBD) members for almost 10 years. He recently spoke with us about his great passion for defined benefit plans.

WHY IS UNISUPER’S DBD ONE OF THE FEW REMAINING OPEN DEFINED BENEFIT PLANS IN AUSTRALIA?

Defined benefit structures around the globe are dying, and I think that’s very unfortunate. They don’t make sense to many companies who have to incorporate the profits and losses from their defined benefit plans into their income statements, which can distort their underlying business. As a consequence, more and more companies are ceasing to offer defined benefit plans.

One of the reasons I came to work with UniSuper was because it has an open defined benefit plan, and I strongly believe they’re inherently good for most of our members.

HOW DOES YOUR ROLE TOUCH ON THE DEFINED BENEFIT DIVISION?

One of the favourite parts of my role is assisting the Chief Investment Officer and the Investment Committee to determine the DBD’s investment strategy. My team and I do some really innovative and exciting work in this space. We need to consider how the DBD’s liabilities are going to change over time, how the assets are likely to correlate to the liabilities, how the assets work together and how to group them to provide the best outcomes for members.

In an environment where we have low interest rates and lower than expected returns, we’re working very hard to try to keep the fund in surplus. It’s challenging, but that is by far the most enjoyable part of my role.
WHY CAN DEFINED BENEFIT PLANS BE GOOD FOR MEMBERS?
We can pool experience under a defined benefit arrangement. By pooling, we can smooth out market volatility, so that people get a better transition through to retirement. As a result, we can give members a greater degree of comfort about what they can receive in retirement.

WHAT ARE SOME OF THE ADVANTAGES OF BEING IN A DEFINED BENEFIT PLAN?
I think the key advantage is that it’s a formula-based system that can generate a smooth increase in benefits that grow in line with a member’s salary, age and service.

There is an advantage and a disadvantage to smoothing investment returns across different groups of members. The advantage is we can increase our allocation to growth assets and benefit from higher returns.

But there is a disadvantage. No matter how good our Board, Investment Committee and investment department are at managing the investment risk in the DBD, the liabilities are growing slowly over time and the assets, which are invested in market-linked securities, are volatile. That means that our funding level, or the difference between the assets and liabilities, changes over time. While we aim to achieve a smooth outcome, there are times when the funding level is in surplus and times when it’s in deficit.

At any one point in time, we expect a difference between the assets and liabilities. However, over long periods of time, across many market cycles, we expect that these values will converge. That’s the inherent nature of defined benefit plans. At UniSuper, we don’t have the mechanism to increase contributions to address a funding deficit, and that means that under extreme conditions, we may need to reduce benefits.

A defined benefit plan isn’t necessarily the best option for everyone. For example, it might not suit someone who is only working for a short time in the tertiary education sector, or is likely to have lots of time out of the workforce during their career. But for the average person who doesn’t want to worry about their superannuation, it’s important for them to know that there’s a group of investment experts and actuaries who are managing everything behind the scenes and doing work they love. This allows our members to get on with what they’re passionate about.

For all the latest information about the DBD, visit unisuper.com.au/dbdupdate.

Changes to super

Legislative update

REFUND OF EXCESS NON-CONCESSIONAL CONTRIBUTIONS
The government has implemented last year’s Budget proposal to allow individuals to withdraw non-concessional super contributions in excess of the non-concessional contributions cap from their super account. This applies to excess non-concessional contributions made from 1 July 2013.

Under this measure, you can request the release of all your excess non-concessional super contributions, plus 85% of any ‘associated earnings’, from an accumulation account or component if there are sufficient funds. The full associated earnings amount will be included in your assessable income and taxed at your marginal tax rate, however you will receive a non-refundable tax-offset of 15% of the associated earnings amount.

The associated earnings amount is calculated by the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) and is not based on actual earnings, but the General Interest Charge (GIC) used by the ATO for tax administration. You can find out more about the GIC at www.ato.gov.au/rates/general-interest-charge-(gic)-rates.

If you choose to release your excess non-concessional super contributions, you won’t be liable for the 49% excess contributions tax that otherwise applies to excess non-concessional contributions.

For more information on this measure, including the GIC, go to www.ato.gov.au and see the ‘Super’ section.

1 You can’t request a refund of excess contributions from the Defined Benefit Division

EARLY ACCESS TO SUPER FOR MEMBERS WITH A TERMINAL MEDICAL CONDITION
Effective 1 July 2015, the government has introduced a measure to allow more people with a terminal illness to access their super early.

Prior to 1 July 2015, people with a terminal illness could only access their super early if they could get certification from two medical specialists that they had less than 12 months to live. The government has changed this period to 24 months.

Important: There could be significant consequences to accessing your super early under this measure.

The certification period for UniSuper’s inbuilt terminal medical condition benefits (DBD members only) and externally insured terminal illness benefits has not changed—both benefits currently require certification from two medical specialists that you have less than 12 months to live.

Accessing your super under the government changes may mean you forfeit eligibility for inbuilt terminal medical condition benefits and externally insured terminal illness benefits.

We strongly recommend you read the Terminal medical condition benefit fact sheet at unisuper.com.au/forms-and-documents/forms-and-brochures and call us on 1800 331 685 to discuss your options.
Changes to the assets test for the Age Pension

The government has increased the assets test ‘asset-free area’ and the rate at which the Age Pension reduces once this threshold has been reached. Effective 1 January 2017, this measure was first proposed in the 2015 Budget.

The assets test, together with the income test, is used to assess an individual’s eligibility for the Age Pension.

The asset-free area is the maximum value of assets individuals can hold and still qualify for the full Age Pension. Once an individual’s assets exceed the asset-free area, their Age Pension is reduced by what’s known as the ‘taper rate’ for every $1,000 of assets above the asset-free area.

The government also confirmed that the family home will continue to be excluded from the assets test.

Changes to the income test for defined benefit pensions

The government has also implemented this year’s Budget proposal to cap the amount of defined benefit pension income that is exempt under the income test from 1 January 2016.

The income test, along with the assets test, is used to assess an individual’s eligibility for the Age Pension.

Currently, the entire tax-free component of a member’s defined benefit pension income (known as the ‘deductible amount’) is exempt from the income test.

The government has introduced an ‘income deduction cap’ to limit exempt income up to a maximum of 10% of the tax-free component.

Financial advisers register established

The government has established a register of individuals licensed to provide personal advice on investments, superannuation and life insurance. The ‘Financial Advisers Register’ allows you to check an adviser’s qualifications and professional membership, employment history and which product areas they can advise on. It also includes details of any bans or disciplinary action taken against the adviser. You can access the register at www.moneysmart.gov.au. Go to Home > Investing > Financial advice > Financial advisers register.

Tax system discussion paper released

Earlier this year, the government released a 203-page ‘Re:think’ tax discussion paper outlining its vision for a comprehensive reform of Australia’s tax system. The paper seeks to improve the fairness of the tax system, including superannuation tax concessions.

After community consultation, the government will release a Green Paper and is likely to take any final recommendations to next year’s federal election.

To find out more, go to bettertax.gov.au.
SOCIAL SECURITY – DEEMING RATES CHANGES

Deeming rates were lowered from 20 March 2015, as shown in the table below.

Deeming rates can be described as artificial interest rates Centrelink uses as an investment’s assumed rate of return when assessing an individual’s entitlement to the Age Pension and other government income support under the income test.

<thead>
<tr>
<th>FAMILY SITUATION</th>
<th>THRESHOLD</th>
<th>DEEMING RATES PRIOR TO 20 MARCH 2015</th>

^Single rates are for a single person receiving a Centrelink pension or allowances. Couple rates are for a couple, one or both of whom are receiving a Centrelink pension. Different rates apply to members of a couple who are receiving Centrelink allowances but not pensions.

Deeming rules have been extended to include account-based pensions—including UniSuper’s Flexi Pension—commenced from 1 January 2015. They also apply to account-based pensions commenced before 1 January 2015 if the account holder wasn’t receiving an eligible government income support payment—such as the Age Pension—prior to this date.
UniSuper update

CONTINUING TO ENHANCE OUR INVESTMENT APPROACH FOR THE SUSTAINABLE OPTIONS

Our Sustainable Balanced and Sustainable High Growth options currently use the Dow Jones Sustainability World Index and the Dow Jones Sustainability Australia Index to identify investable stocks for their international shares and Australian shares allocations respectively. As part of our commitment to continually review and enhance our investment approach, we will be looking to incorporate sustainability research and ratings from additional external research provider(s), and/or external fund manager(s), where appropriate. As a consequence, the universe of investable stocks may be broader than that defined by the Dow Jones Sustainability indices alone.

Further information on our investment approach for the Sustainable options will be available in the updated How we invest your money product disclosure statement (1 October 2015).

CHANGES TO THE STRATEGIC ASSET ALLOCATIONS OF OUR SUSTAINABLE OPTIONS

From 1 October 2015, the strategic asset allocation for our Sustainable Balanced and Sustainable High Growth options will be as follows:

FEE CHANGES EFFECTIVE MID- AND LATE-2015
Following a regular review of our fees and costs, a number of fee and cost changes will apply from 1 July 2015 and 1 October 2015.

Changes effective 1 July 2015
The changes effective 1 July 2015 are shown in the table below:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>

* This super account can be either an Accumulation 1 or 2, Defined Benefit Division or Spouse Account.
NON-LAPSING BINDING DEATH BENEFIT NOMINATIONS
Non-lapsing binding death benefit nominations will be available to Defined Benefit Division (death benefits paid as a lump sum only), Accumulation 1, Accumulation 2, Spouse Account, Flexi Pension and Term Allocated Pension members from 1 October 2015.

Currently, we only offer lapsing binding death benefit nominations, which expire after three years.

From 1 October 2015, you can choose to make a non-lapsing binding death benefit nomination if you’re eligible. This type of nomination will not expire (unless you amend or revoke it), so it doesn’t need to be confirmed or updated every three years.

Watch our website for details of how to apply once this becomes available.

AUTOMATIC UPDATES TO LEVEL OF INCOME PROTECTION INSURANCE COVER FOR ACCUMULATION 2 MEMBERS
Automatic income protection insurance cover updates came into effect on 1 July 2015 to help keep the cover of eligible Accumulation 2 members up to date.

Income Protection cover can protect up to 85% of your pre-disability income, including up to 10% super. Subject to the automatic acceptance limit, if you’re an eligible Accumulation 2 member, the level of Income Protection insurance cover you’re entitled to is automatically updated twice a year in line with changes to your salary, unless you opt out or make changes to your cover yourself.

You can opt out using MemberOnline (unisuper.com.au/mol) or by completing the Changing your insurance cover form.

For more information, see the Insurance in your super booklet, which is available at unisuper.com.au/pds.

ON-CAMPUS CONSULTANTS NOW AUSTRALIA-WIDE
On-campus consultants are now available to UniSuper members at all of our 36 member universities, through either a permanent presence on campus, scheduled on-site appointments or the use of technology such as video conferencing.

Your on-campus consultant can provide you with face-to-face support, including:

→ general advice and information about your membership and account
→ explaining how to set up online access to your account
→ helping you understand super contributions (including salary sacrifice) and contributions caps
→ directing you to other services and tools provided by UniSuper
→ answering general questions about our forms or paperwork.

To find out if an on-campus consultant is available at your campus and to book your appointment, check your university specific page at unisuper.com.au/employers/universities.
WORKPLACE GENDER EQUALITY AGENCY (WGEA) REPORTING
UniSuper recently submitted its annual report to the WGEA (formerly The Equal Opportunity for Women in the Workplace Agency) as part of its requirements to comply with the Workplace Gender Equality Act 2012 (WGE Act). WGEA is the government statutory authority charged with supporting and improving gender equality in Australian workplaces. To view the report, visit our website at unisuper.com.au/about-us/about-unisuper/governance-documents.

UNISUPER APPOINTS NEW MASTER CUSTODIAN
Earlier this year UniSuper announced the appointment of BNP Paribas Securities Services (BNP Paribas) as the Fund’s new master custodian.

Our custodian is responsible for the safekeeping of many of the assets we hold on behalf of our members. It also provides a range of reporting and administrative services that support our finance and investment activities and help us meet our regulatory obligations.

BNP Paribas will replace NAB Asset Servicing, with whom UniSuper partnered with for more than 20 years.

Trust Deed changes
The following amendment has been made to the UniSuper Trust Deed and Regulations, which govern how the Fund operates.

ENABLE THE TRUSTEE TO OFFER NON-LAPSING BINDING DEATH BENEFIT NOMINATIONS TO ELIGIBLE MEMBERS – EFFECTIVE 1 OCTOBER 2015
Under the UniSuper Trust Deed, UniSuper allows eligible members to make binding death benefit nominations in regards to the distribution of their super benefit after their death. These types of nominations require the Trustee to pay the member’s death benefit to the member’s nominated beneficiaries, and expire after three years (unless renewed prior to the expiry date). If the nomination is invalid or has lapsed at the member’s death, any death benefit payable will be distributed at the Trustee’s discretion.

The Trust Deed and Regulations have been amended to enable the Trustee to offer a second type of binding death benefit nomination—non-lapsing binding death benefit nominations. Non-lapsing nominations are essentially binding nominations that do not expire.

Non-lapsing nominations provide members with certainty about who will receive any benefits payable in the event of their death, and remove the inconvenience of having to renew a lapsing nomination every three years.
SuperRatings, a superannuation research company, has awarded UniSuper a 10-year Platinum Performance rating for its Accumulation 1 and Accumulation 2 products in 2015. Go to www.superratings.com.au for details of its rating criteria. SuperRatings does not issue, sell, guarantee or underwrite this product.

Chant West has awarded UniSuper a 5 Apples rating for its Accumulation 1 and Accumulation 2 products in 2015, and ‘Super Fund of the Year’ and ‘Investments Best Fund’ in its 2015 awards. For further information about the methodology used by Chant West, see www.chantwest.com.au.
